Balto was a Siberian Husky sled dog who became a hero in 1925 when he led a team of sled dogs on a mercy mission to deliver diphtheria serum to the remote town of Nome, Alaska. The serum was desperately needed to stop an outbreak of the deadly disease that was threatening the lives of the town's residents.

Balto was born in Nome in 1919. He was a strong and determined dog, and he quickly became a favorite among the sled dog racers in the town. In 1925, when the diphtheria outbreak hit Nome, Balto was one of the dogs chosen to be part of the relay team that would transport the serum from Nenana to Nome.

The journey was treacherous. The team had to travel over 600 miles through harsh winter conditions, including snowstorms, blizzards, and sub-zero temperatures. Balto led the team through the worst of the conditions, and he never gave up. He was determined to get the serum to Nome, and he refused to let anything stop him.

Finally, after 20 days of travel, the team reached Nome. Balto had led the team through the worst of the conditions, and he had saved the lives of the town's residents. He was a hero.
